Difficult to administer because of a mismatch between sanctioning capacity and functional responsibility:

Can be unnecessarily antagonistic for reporting faculty

Can result in inadvertent inconsistencies in outcomes or sanctioning

Does not capitalize on opportunities to reduce recidivism

Logistically unsustainable for SCCS

Fundamental authorizing authority for the AI process

Centralized record-keeping

Presumption of innocence

University-level appellate opportunity

Sanctioning capacity now matches functional responsibility

SCCS can apply "Educational" (may reduce recidivism)

Only Colleges can apply "Academic" sanctions

Only SCCS can apply "Disciplinary" sanctions

Violation-finding responsibility vests with the College of allegation

Each College will stand up an AI process for allegations within their College

Committees comprised of faculty/students more familiar with academic field

Each college can tailor procedure to suit academic field and objectives
