

THE CLEAR WINNER

Dry skin isn't immune to breakouts, and it tends to clear up on its own.

Type of skin can add pimple-forming matter to pores, says Jody A. Lippman, M.D., a dermatologist in NYC. Use a soap-free exfoliant such as Peter Thomas Roth Blemish Buffing Beads, $36, every two to three days.

flawless skin

Even if you're not prone to breakouts, you may still have clogged pores clogging dead skin cells. Rub one onto skin, then spot-treat.

By Liz Fitzpatrick and Christina Kim
Illustration by Liz Fitzpatrick

1. Exfoliate Use a gentle exfoliant to remove dead skin cells that can clog pores. 2. Spot-treat Apply a targeted treatment to any blemishes that appear. 3. Moisturize Hydrating products help maintain skin's natural barrier and prevent dryness.

PHOTO: GETTY IMAGES; ILLUSTRATION: LIZ FITZPATRICK